EIGHTEEN PAGES—FIVE CENTS

Crews Work Madly To Save Trapped Girl

Rescuer Reports Sight Of 3-Year Old

San Marino, Calif., April 9 (AP)—A grim report that he saw the motionless arm of 3-year-old Kathy Fiscus in an abandoned well was given to a surface crew today by Machinist O. A. Kelly.

Kelly worked feverishly in a rescue shaft sunk by the side of the well pipe into which Kathy slipped yesterday. He used powerful flashlights and mirrors to peer into the 14-inch pipe through a hole cut into it.

He said he believed he saw her arm at the 94-foot depth.

He was at a level of 37 feet in the rescue shaft, using mirrors to shine the sun's rays down the adjacent pipe.

Actual digging moved to another shaft because of the danger of a cave-in of the 37-foot one. It was planned to insert 24-inch water well casing into the latest shaft to avoid possibility of any cave-in.

Family Remains Confident
Some hope was still held out for the child by the Fiscus family physician and by the mother, Mrs. David F. Fiscus, who told reporters: "Our physician has been so hopeful that I feel Kathy can not be anything but all right."

Dr. Robert J. McCulloch, the physician, said shock and unconsciousness might be sufficient to preclude struggling and fear in the mind of the child and sustain her until such time as rescuers get to her.

Construction engineer Don Metz said the object which appeared to be a dress was sighted at the 95-foot level by looking through the hole which was cut with electric saws.

"We don't know where the little girl is," said Raymond A. Hill, supervising the operations. "All we know is that she is more than 37 feet deep in the pipeline. We'll be here all afternoon and well into the evening."

Work Extremely Dangerous
Engineers said the work was exceedingly dangerous because the rescue shaft was dug without supporting timbers. "This stuff is pretty soft, watch it," came a voice from below over the microphone at one point. "Look out, there's a slide."

Kelly, an experienced machinist, went through a lateral tunnel to the old pipe and cut the hole in it. He shoveled up "That pipe is rusty, in fact it's rotten."

Police estimated that approximately 5,000 persons, standing quietly or talking in subdued voices, were at the scene.

Metz said he believed "there's a better than an even chance that she's still alive if there's not water where she is, and we know there's very little water above the 200-foot level."

Doctor Belays Hope
However, a doctor, who declined use of his name, said he believed that "under the circumstances, I think the longest she could have continued to breathe would be four hours."

Fire Chief Jimmy Bolz said he believed there is a chance the girl may be alive.

With abandonment of operations in the 37-foot rescue shaft, work proceeded with a portable rotary well digging rig in the other rescue shaft. This shaft, at the top, is only three feet from the pipe in which Kathy is imprisoned.

This shaft will be taken to a depth of 100 or 110 feet, Hill said. He said a man then will be lowered by rope, with pick and shovel, to dig a lateral tunnel to the well pipe. He said going through the tunnel will be dangerous, as it will have no overhead supports.

"That's a chance somebody will have to take," he said. "We hope to be in clay, which is self-supporting. If the girl is not where we presume she is, we'll have to go deeper."

The rotary bit has been striking rock occasionally. At one point the bit was damaged by the rock and had to be pulled out and repaired with a welding torch.

No sound had been heard from the child since she answered her mother with faint cries shortly after tumbling into the 14-inch pipe at 4:45 p.m. yesterday. Rescue workers have been unable to determine whether she is still alive.

ARREST 50 PERSONS IN GUATEMALA REVOLT

Guatemala, Guatemala, April 9 (AP)—The government said today that more than 50 persons had been captured in the last 25 hours in mopping up operations against rebels in San Marcos province.

The uprising, in western Guatemala near the Mexican border, is the 19th against the regime of President Juan Jose Arevalo since his election in 1945. The president has declared his own state of emergency.

A weekly paper published in California is known as the Walnut Kernel.

Nationwide Response Backs Effingham Drive

Effingham, Ill., April 9—(P)—With workmen still toiling to clear away the rubble which is all that's left of St. Anthony's hospital, donations are beginning to pour in for a new medical center here.

A tentative goal of $600,000 has been set in a nationwide fund-raising drive to rebuild the city's only hospital destroyed by fire Tuesday.

Hawley Everhart, a spokesman for the drive, said that donations of $27,200 have been officially received so far, but that a larger number of others have not yet been tallied. A further announcement on the drive's progress will be made Tuesday, which has been declared a memorial day in this south central Illinois community.

Army And Navy Help
The army and navy already have sent representatives to Effingham in preparation for establishment of a temporary hospital. It will be supplied and operated by the services until the new one is built.

If no buildings are available in Effingham, quonset huts will be set up. The navy said it could send an entire mobile unit, including a surgical operating unit, an X-ray unit and a dental unit—equipment equal to that of a 125-bed hospital. The destroyed hospital had 123 beds, and the proposed one will have 150.

The state commander of the American Legion, William C. Burns of Chicago, has appealed to the 1,140 legion posts in Illinois for monetary assistance in rebuilding the hospital. Burns asks that all posts send their contributions to the Chicago and Bloomington offices of the legion, to be turned over to A. L. Anderson, commander of Effingham Post No. 120.

Radio, Newspapers Aid
Radio stations and newspapers in many communities are aiding in the fund drive.

The Decatur Herald reported it had learned of contributions of $16,000 from John Schultz of Teutopolis, a Deiterich, Ill., seed company operator; and $1,000 from Dr. Annie Ranes, Chicago surgeon and former Effingham area resident.

In Chicago, the Volunteers of America announced it had sent a $200 contribution to the Effingham Daily News for the hospital fund. Seventy-four persons died or still are missing as a result of the tragic fire.

Douglas made his suggestion in an address to the second convention of the Americans for Democratic Action.

He declared "I do not think I am breaking any confidence" by saying that he and Sen. Thomas (D-Utah) plan a Senate resolution on the proposal as soon as the North Atlantic treaty is ratified.

The Douglas suggestion calls for the Senate to adopt a resolution to be sent to the UN general assembly, calling upon all UN members to agree to a supplement embodying the same points as those of the North Atlantic pact.

Presumably, Russia and her satellites would be asked to subscribe to the treaty.

This, Douglas said, would be made effective by a two-thirds vote of the general assembly and by the vote of three out of five members of the Security Council.

Britain Agrees To Split Short Wave Frequencies

Mexico City, April 9—(P)—Britain announced today she would sign the proposed international radio conference agreement dividing short wave frequencies.

She was the first of the big powers to approve the highly controversial plan now under consideration here by representatives of 85 countries.

The United States refused to sign two days ago and was followed today by Liberia, Chile and several Russian satellite countries. Russia, although at the top of the list for allotted time, also is expected to refuse. The U. S. is in ninth place.

Both Russia and France will make written statements.

Fire Chief Jimmy Bolz said he believed there is a chance the girl may be alive.

With abandonment of operations in the 37-foot rescue shaft, work proceeded with a portable rotary well digging rig in the other rescue shaft. This shaft, at the top, is only three feet from the pipe in which Kathy is imprisoned.

This shaft will be taken to a depth of 100 or 110 feet, Hill said. He said a man then will be lowered by rope, with pick and shovel, to dig a lateral tunnel to the well pipe. He said going through the tunnel will be dangerous, as it will have no overhead supports.

"That's a chance somebody will have to take," he said. "We hope to be in clay, which is self-supporting. If the girl is not where we presume she is, we'll have to go deeper."

Big Three Feels That Russia Plans Peace 'Fake' Soon

Washington, April 9—(P)—Secretary of State Acheson, British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman agreed here this week that Russia may set off a phony peace offensive to try to wreck the west's new-found unity on Germany.

Consequently while shaping their own plans for western Germany's recognition as a member of the non-communist community of nations they determined to be on their guard against some tricky political assault from the past.

It was learned that the Acheson-Bevin-Schuman talks which ended yesterday covered considerably more ground with respect to Germany than was disclosed in the official communiqué.

The problem of how to deal with Russia was complicated by the fact that no one in the western camp knows even in a general way what the Soviets may do next.

The basic decision of the three foreign ministers on this point, however, was that they should go forward with their own plans for uniting Germany in spite of continuing Soviet opposition.

Police Believe Crippled Widow Died Accidentally

Hammond, Ind., April 9—(P)—The death of a 54-year-old crippled widow whose body was found outside her burned trailer home may have been caused by accident, police decided today.

Detective Capt. Andrew Pellini said the widow, Mrs. Evangelina Thomas, was believed to have injured herself in a frantic dash to escape from the burning trailer last night.

Deputy Coroner B. W. Chidlaw said, however, he would investigate further before giving a verdict in the woman's death. Chidlaw said Mrs. Thomas had suffered second and third degree burns and there were cuts on her head and body.

Capt. Pellari and Detective Lt. Frank O'Donnell said they had found witnesses who told of seeing Mrs. Thomas, who walked with a crutch, hobbling from the burning trailer.

The officers said 14-year-old Patsy Jean Sutry and Mrs. Inez Jones told them they saw Mrs. Thomas come out of the trailer with her clothes ablaze and jump into a box. Then, they said, she ran into a cement well and, apparently dazed, fell into a glass-strewn rubbish heap.

Stalin Praises Russian Scientists For Atomic Work

Moscow, April 9—(P)—Soviet Russia today awarded highest Stalin prizes to two scientists for their atomic and cosmic ray research in 1948.

One of the prizes, the first announced this year, went to Georgi Latyshev for his investigations into the nucleus of the atom. Latyshev is head of the laboratory of the Leningrad physico-technical institute of the U.S.S.R. academy of sciences.

Another prize was awarded to Sergi Vernov, professor at Moscow University, for experimental studies of cosmic rays in the higher layer of the atmosphere.

Latyshev's research was set forth in his essays on "Inner Conversion of Gamma Radiation," "This Structure of Gamma Lines," "Monochromatic Positions of Inner Conversions" and "Radioactivity of Beryllium."

Vernov's work was outlined in "Investigations with the Aid of the Goggles of Showers of Particles Formed in Lead by Cosmic Rays in the Stratosphere."

First Major Speech This Year
Also unprecedented was the permission given foreign correspondents to attend the congress.

It was Tito's first big policy speech since New Year's eve and one of the few he has made since last June when the cominform expelled him and his party on charges of pursuing anti-Soviet policies.

He swiftly launched into his dispute with the other communist nations, and declared there was "more truth than gossip" to their stories of western trade with Yugoslavia.

"Are we going to trade—that is, to buy everything we need, and sell everything we can in order to pay for imported machines?" he asked.

"Of course we will! It would be a crime against our socialist country if we failed to do so. They will give us machines and plants and we shall give them what we have and what we can give money for goods and vice versa."

"If they are willing to trade with us on that basis, it is all right. I do not, they cannot expect anything from us. Everybody should bear this in mind."

Meanwhile at Dubrovnik a district court sentenced nine persons to prison terms of six to 15 years on charges of attempting to flee Yugoslavia to join the cominform opposition.

Committee Ups Military Budget To Record Figure

House Debates On Marshall Plan After Approving Vote

Washington, April 9—(P)—The House turned swiftly today toward the issue of providing Europe a second installment of Marshall plan aid with approval soon strongly indicated.

Less than 24 hours after the Senate passed its $5,500,000,000 authorization bill by a smashing 70 to 7 vote, the House began debating its slightly different measure. It provides $5,380,000,000 for direct assistance, plus certain guarantees for American investors abroad.

From the very start, power behind the plan was evident, although Rep. Marcantonio (AL-NY) attacked it as "insanity."

One supporter of the measure, Rep. Lawrence H. Smith (R-Wis.) announced he will try to cut the authorization by $500,000,000. In the face of administration demands for the whole sum.

Voting Starts Next Week
Today was reserved for talk, and talk alone. The voting probably will start next week. Both Republicans and Democrats appeared to be lining up in strength behind the second round of economic aid. There seemed little likelihood that restrictive amendments will be adopted.

After slightly more than five hours debate, the House adjourned until Monday.

The bill authorizes the European Recovery Program to continue to July 1, 1950. Separate legislation is required to vote the money to finance it.

Chairman Kee (D-W. Va.) of the foreign affairs committee led off the arguments for the bill.

CIO President Bolsters Support For T-H Repeal

Washington, April 9—(P)—CIO President Philip Murray ordered his union members today to whip up "badly needed support" for Taft-Hartley repeal and the administration's "entire fair deal program."

In a letter to all CIO unions, state and city councils, Murray told them to put the heat on members of congress when the lawmakers return home for the April 15-25 Easter recess.

"They must be impressed with the fact that labor and the people in this country are dissatisfied with the record of the 81st Congress during its first three months," Murray's letter said.

The CIO chief told his followers they "must demand immediate and positive action" on: (1) the administration's new labor bill; (2) an "effective minimum wage bill"; (3) "an economic program to combat unemployment"; (4) "improved social security"; (5) "better housing"; (6) "a sound health insurance program"; (7) civil rights—"and all the other elements of the president's fair deal program."

Western Germany Occupants Offer New Freedoms

Bonn, Germany, April 9—(P)—Broad new freedom were offered western Germany's millions tonight. They came from the United States, Britain and France in the form of an "occupation statute"—a semi-peace treaty.

The full text will not be made available for publication until after German leaders have studied it, presumably about the middle of next week.

The statute will become effective as soon as the Germans from a federal republic. They may do this by July 1.

The statute, approved by the three foreign ministers in Washington this week:

1. Gives 45,000,000 Germans in three western zones the right to run their internal affairs almost without interference from the occupiers.

2. Make it clear to Soviet Russia that the Western allies are leaving no weak spots in their unity—and no chink for Communist revolution from within.

The statute is a document of about 700 words—one of the shortest peace treaties on record.

M. VICKERS WILL WED MICKEY ROONEY

Hollywood, April 9—(P)—Movie Actress Martha Vickers told newsmen today she plans to go to Las Vegas, Nev., next week to divorce A. C. Lyles, Jr., Hollywood publicist, and then marry Mickey Rooney in June.

Rooney said he was too much in love with Martha to wait until her California divorce is final next September.

Rooney's divorce from Betty Jane Rase becomes final May 28.

Accent Is On Aerial Might As U.S. Arms

Washington, April 9—(AP)—Reflecting the world's jitters, the House appropriations committee today raised the armed forces budget to a peacetime record of $15,909,116,800.

This was more than half a billion dollars above President Truman's request.

Nobody said in testimony of the bill made public today that war is near. Indeed there were signs of easing fears. But the dangers of a chance event setting off a conflict was brought out.

The bill's accent was on aerial might. The navy and army trailed the air force in sharing the gigantic appropriation.

The committee subscribed to the statement that in the light of the "calculated risks weighted with all national economy, there must be known factors."

Bradley, Optimistic On War
General Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, gave some reassurance when he told the committee he does not expect war to break out within the year for which the appropriation is made. That year begins next July 1 and ends June 30, 1950.

"Last year I was more worried than I am at the present time," Bradley told the congressmen.

And Air Secretary Symington said he doesn't think a "possible aggressor" will have the atomic bomb before 1952.

The bill combines, for the first time since enactment of the armed services unification act, funds to finance all three services.

Its total is $52,980,100 in cash and $77,755,000 in contract authority more than President Truman requested in his budget. Just about the increase was earmarked for the air force to build it up to a strength of 58 full groups.

Here's how the services fared in the big bill:

The Army: $4,481,834,200 in cash, including $200,000,000 to liquidate previous contract authorization. The president requested a total of $5,138,352,000.

The Air Force: $6,215,709,000 consisting of $3,447,954,000 cash, $1,992,755,000 in contract authority and $875,000,000 cash to liquidate previous contracts. The president wanted a total of $5,428,887,000.

In addition, the bill carries $3,700,000 for the national security resources board and $189,000,000 in retirement pay for all the services.

All of the $530,000,000 requested for research and development was approved by the committee.

Russ Claims Allies Planting War Bases In North Africa

Lake Success April 9—(P)—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko accused the western powers today of developing Italy's former North Africa colonies as bases for aggression against the Soviet union. American and British spokesmen denied the charge.

Gromyko told the U.N. assembly's 58-nation political committee that Libya, on North Africa's Mediterranean coast, is "riddled with a network of Anglo-American aid and naval bases."

Making his first major public speech since his appointment as Russia's chief deputy foreign minister, Gromyko indirectly attacked the recently signed North Atlantic treaty.

"The United Kingdom, United States and France," he declared, "seek to keep their hold on the former Italian colonies at all costs with a view to using the territory for bases for aggressive plans which lately found expression in forming military blocs whose spear point is directed against the Soviet Union."

The thorny problem of disposing of the African empire that Mussolini lost in the war was referred to the assembly after the United States, Britain, Russia and France failed to reach an agreement on the subject among themselves. The Italian peace treaty had given the Big Four a year to settle the matter.

"GENTLEMEN, BE SEATED!"

The curtain has dropped on another successful Lions club minstrel show. The endmen cavorted and cracked jokes to the delight of three large audiences, which also enjoyed familiar minstrel tunes rendered by the chorus. The entire cast, all amateurs, succeeded in staging a tuneful, colorful show that would compare well with the extravagant productions of the old days when this form of entertainment was in its hey-day.

The fact is that amateurs have inherited the job of keeping the traditional minstrel show alive. Gone from the "road" are the big professional troupes that for nearly a century made the nation laugh with the newest minstrel gags. It is up to the amateurs to perpetuate the rollicking mirth of the endmen, the suave sophistication of the interlocutor, the melody of soloists and chorus.

Once upon a time the minstrel business was in the hands of professional laughmakers like Peimrose and Dockstader, Neil O'Brien, Lassies White and Honeyboy Evans. Their big troupes played Jacksonville and other towns regularly. The brass band and street parade were features of each visit. In this city today are men who have marched proudly at the side of high-stepping minstrel men carrying banners which advertised either the show itself, or some enterprising business house. The opera house at night was ablaze with lights as a large crowd jammed in to guffaw at the antics and wisecracks of the comedians who made minstrel a business.

Neil O'Brien's minstrels and Harvey's minstrels were the last headline professional minstrel shows to visit Jacksonville. That was in the early twenties, when the Grand opera house was still booking road attractions. It was not long, however, until the big outfits that made burnt cork comedy their specialty began to disappear from the road.

Audiences still like minstrel entertainment. They appreciate a belly laugh now as they did a generation or two ago. With names of big-time minstrels almost a memory, the amateurs appear to have an open field. With good organization and coaching, large casts can be gathered together and trained in their home towns. The amateurs can handle the situation nicely if the attraction is expertly managed. The Lions have proved that point, year after year. Three audiences patronizing the 1949 Lions minstrel show realized that quite a few men who work in stores, offices, schoolrooms, and at the trades can make 'em laugh when they put on their minstrel togs at night and give out with their lines. 'Lassies White wouldn't have been ashamed to have some of these amateur funnymen in his cast—they would have looked good!

DISAGREEMENT DOES NOT EXCUSE BAD MANNERS TOWARD VISITORS

Britain's Foreign Minister Bevin was the target of eggs and vegetables when he arrived in this country to sign the North Atlantic Treaty. They were thrown by members of youth organizations who objected to his handling of the Palestine situation.

Britain's former Prime Minister Churchill, another visitor, was accused in the Senate of being a "cold-blooded propagandist" for war and was virtually called a liar to boot. The charges were made by Senator Langer, who refused to accept Mr. Churchill's denial that he fought with Spain against the United States in 1898. "I never was wrong in my life," the self-assured statesman from North Dakota shouted by way of proving his point.

These and other similar instances, have left us wondering whether a free citizen of this self-governing country owes a little of the same courtesy to a guest of his country that he usually accords a guest in his own house. And we wonder whether courageous convictions, righteous anger or honest errors are a sufficient excuse for bad manners.

In our blessedly free country a citizen may be rude within reason. There is no law against it. But the well-bred citizen, as an individual, usually tries to curb any impulse to abuse the privilege. Most of us like to be well thought of. Most of us also realize that differences aren't settled nor wrongs righted by bad manners however convinced or indignant we may be.

Mr. Bevin, many of us believe has not always acted justly or honestly toward Israel. But eggs and tomatoes aren't going to make him repent. Senator Langer, who has never been wrong, may not like Mr. Churchill. But his calling him a war monger does not make it so and his calling him a liar does not threaten his eminent place in history.

There is nothing to be done about all this, so it is useless to complain. But we still hope to see the day return when all Americans can receive an eminent and friendly foreign guest with courtesy, even though they may disagree with him rather than with eggs, insults and picket lines.

COMMUNICATION

To the Jacksonville Journal Courier Company:
In response to your recent editorial published in the local paper, April 1 referring to the Senate Optometry Bill 184, entitled, "Carrying the Joke Too Far."

This bill with all requirements was drawn up by optometrists of the Illinois Optometric Association for the protection and betterment of optometrists and their service to the public. If you would read the law on dentistry you would learn that their law is similar to the law that the majority of the optometrists are desiring.

Senate bill number 184 does not prohibit advertising, but restricts the form of advertising used so that the public will not be duped into inferior service by the lure of a cheap price.

Optometrists are practicing a profession in which the materials used are incidental to the services rendered. Many ex-service men are now engaged in the study of the profession of optometry. Optometry is endeavoring to create an opportunity for veterans to establish themselves in ethical practices.

This bill has the support of the Illinois Medical Society, the Chicago Ophthalmological Society, and the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

We, the undersigned optometrists of Jacksonville and members of the local optometric societies affiliated with the Illinois Optometric Association are favorable toward the bill.

Why People Want Money

By HAL BOYLE
New York—(AP)—What do most people who seek to win cash on radio quiz programs say they need money for?

"Finest in their family—that is the number one problem," said Todd Russell, who has questioned thousands of contestants in the last five years.

"And until recently money for better housing ran a very close second."

Russell, a tall, handsome curly-haired Canadian, is currently master of ceremonies on "Strike It Rich," a CBS show. Each contestant on the show is given $25 to start and can win up to $800 by betting on his ability to answer a series of questions successfully.

Contestants are screened in advance on the basis of their actual need—and the nature of the project for which they want cash.

"Some, of course, are phonies and showoffs," said Russell. "But the overwhelming majority are people who have a worthwhile reason. A surprising number don't want anything for themselves. They want to help their neighbors."

"With women it is usually a question of needing money to do something around the house or to aid some member of their family. With men it is more on a personal basis. What they want usually costs more, too. Often they want money to start business."

Men Fare Better Than Women
Russell has found men fare better generally than women, partly because they appear to have more general information and partly because "they are less nervous before the microphone."

Because you "can't always throw sorrow into people's ears," some contestants are chosen each week on the basis of their oddity of their reason for wanting moolah. Such as the man with the amorous bull.

"He was a New Jersey farmer whose bull kept breaking through wooden fences to make coal calls on cows in the next pasture," explained Russell. "And he won what he wanted—enough to buy an electric fence to keep his bull at home."

Some others: A frustrated city bachelor wanted to journey to Newfoundland and become a hermit. Two husbandless office girls in Washington, D. C., sought transportation money to go to Alaska, where they figured the ratio of men-to-women was more in their favor. Alas—they lost.

A young ex-soldier, living in a Massachusetts town, just thought it would be nice to have enough dough to loaf a while.

Couldn't Name First Indian
"He missed out because he couldn't give the name of the first Indian to welcome the Pilgrims," laughed Russell. "Then it turned out that there was a statue to the Indian—Samocet—in his own town. He passed the statue every day going to work. Probably still does."

A few contestants, after winning enough money to achieve their purpose, risk it by gambling for more.

"This always annoys the audience—it seems to them like cheating," Russell said. "One woman told us she needed $100 to buy a set of false teeth."

"But she didn't stop at $100. She got up to $325."

Of that she decided to bet $300 on the last question. But she fell on her face and ended up with only $25."

One woman tried to win enough to pay for an operation to stop intermittent attacks of hiccups she had suffered for three years. She failed.

"But a doctor who heard of the case did the operation for free," said Russell. "She was happy—but her husband was even more grateful. He said her hiccups were making him a nervous wreck."

U. S. Hospital In Decatur Urged By 40 And 8 Speaker

At the regular meeting of the 40 and 8 of the American Legion, held Thursday evening, April 7, at the Legion home, presided over by Chief de Gare Ray Hogan, the group was visited by Russell Carter, the local district chemist; Lowell C. Allen, district officer for the V.A., and Glenn H. Cannon, national defense committee member for the Grand Voiture of Illinois, all of Decatur.

After the handling of routine business, in which it was brought out that the 40 and 8 is sponsoring a carnival for the week of May 9-15, inclusive, the members of the voiture heard a stirring address by Glenn H. Cannon with reference to the new hospital that is planned to be erected in Decatur.

Mr. Cannon pointed out that of the several new hospitals to be erected to take care of hospitalized veterans, the one to be located in Decatur is designed to take care of 35 counties, including Morgan county, and that hospitalization facilities would be far more centrally located for the disabled veterans of Morgan county than the present hospital facilities now in existence. He pointed out that the Hoover commission, appointed by the president for the purpose of streamlining the government administration facilities had recommended, among other things, that the plan for the hospital in Decatur be dropped. When this "taken into consideration with the fact that the present hospital facilities under the control of the Veterans Administration is not sufficiently adequate for the veterans of World War I, it is apparent that it could not be adequate when it is considered that there are millions more veterans of World War II who would be entitled to hospitalization. He urged that every veteran, his family and his friends and acquaintances bring to bear upon congressmen and senators of Illinois, particularly this district, the fact that hospitalization facilities of Decatur are of vital importance and necessity.

Carpenters Vote $500 To Hospital

At a meeting of Local 904, Carpenters and Joiners of America, held here on April 7, the members voted to contribute $500 to the Passavant Memorial Area hospital building fund. This is in addition to $225 contributed previously.

Announcement of the new contribution was made by R. C. Kemp, recording secretary of the local.

When metals break, the fractures begin with extremely small cracks. The break does not occur instantaneously throughout the sample, as usually assumed. The tiny cracks are the nuclei, which grow into a large split when enough tension is applied.

RUSSIAN ZONE BUSINESS NATIONALIZED

Berlin.—A.—Four thousand seven hundred enterprises have been nationalized in the Russian zone of Germany so far, the zone's economic administration announced.

The factories were taken away from Nazis, criminals and "capitalists," partly because they failed to meet production quotas fixed by the Communist-controlled administration.

They were turned over to state combines of "people's owned enterprises," which accounts for more than 45 per cent of the zone's total industrial production.

Stuffed celery wedges are always popular fare to serve with a first course of fruit or tomato juice. For the stuffing use cream cheese blended with mayonnaise and then mixed with thin strips of black olive. Sprinkle with paprika before serving. In preparing the celery the large yellow leaves on the large outside stalks should be removed, but the small yellow leaves on the stalks may be left on. The large stalks may be cut in small wedges and stuffed, but the small inner stalks may be served whole.

Pedal Pushers Win Honors

BY EPSIE KINARD
NEA Fashion Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Pedal pushers are the recipients of two fashion honors this spring.

They launch a new fabric which chalks up another triumph for versatile rayon. They make a style hit which is as well liked in Paris as in the U. S. A.

The del Mar-designed pedal pusher fashion (right) is the American sportswear choice of Leslie Caron, a sailing enthusiast and the dancing sensation of Paris. She is shown sailing down the Seine wearing red cotton poplin pedal pushers with a boned camisole top and a matching bolero of black birdseye pique.

The pin-checked pedal pusher suit (above) on the American gal who patters with paint oves the crisply tailored look of both trousers and jacket to a new crease-resistant, crimpable rayon. This takes a smooth finish, tailors like quality worsted, is budget-priced, feels cool, and is able to stay crisp in wilting heat.

Mountain Burns
2900 Years

Sydney, Australia—(AP)—A mountain in New South Wales has been burning for 2,000 years, scientists think. This is Mount Wingen, a ridge 1,800 feet above sea level, among lofty ranges two miles north of the town of the same name, and 206 miles north of Sydney on the main northern railway that links Sydney with Brisbane. The burning mountain has a coal seam that is burning underground. It is supposed that the fire possibly started from heat generated by oxidation of sulphur. The fire burns very slowly, due to shortage of oxygen underground. Wingen is an aboriginal word meaning "fire."

War Was Safer, Says Navy Vet

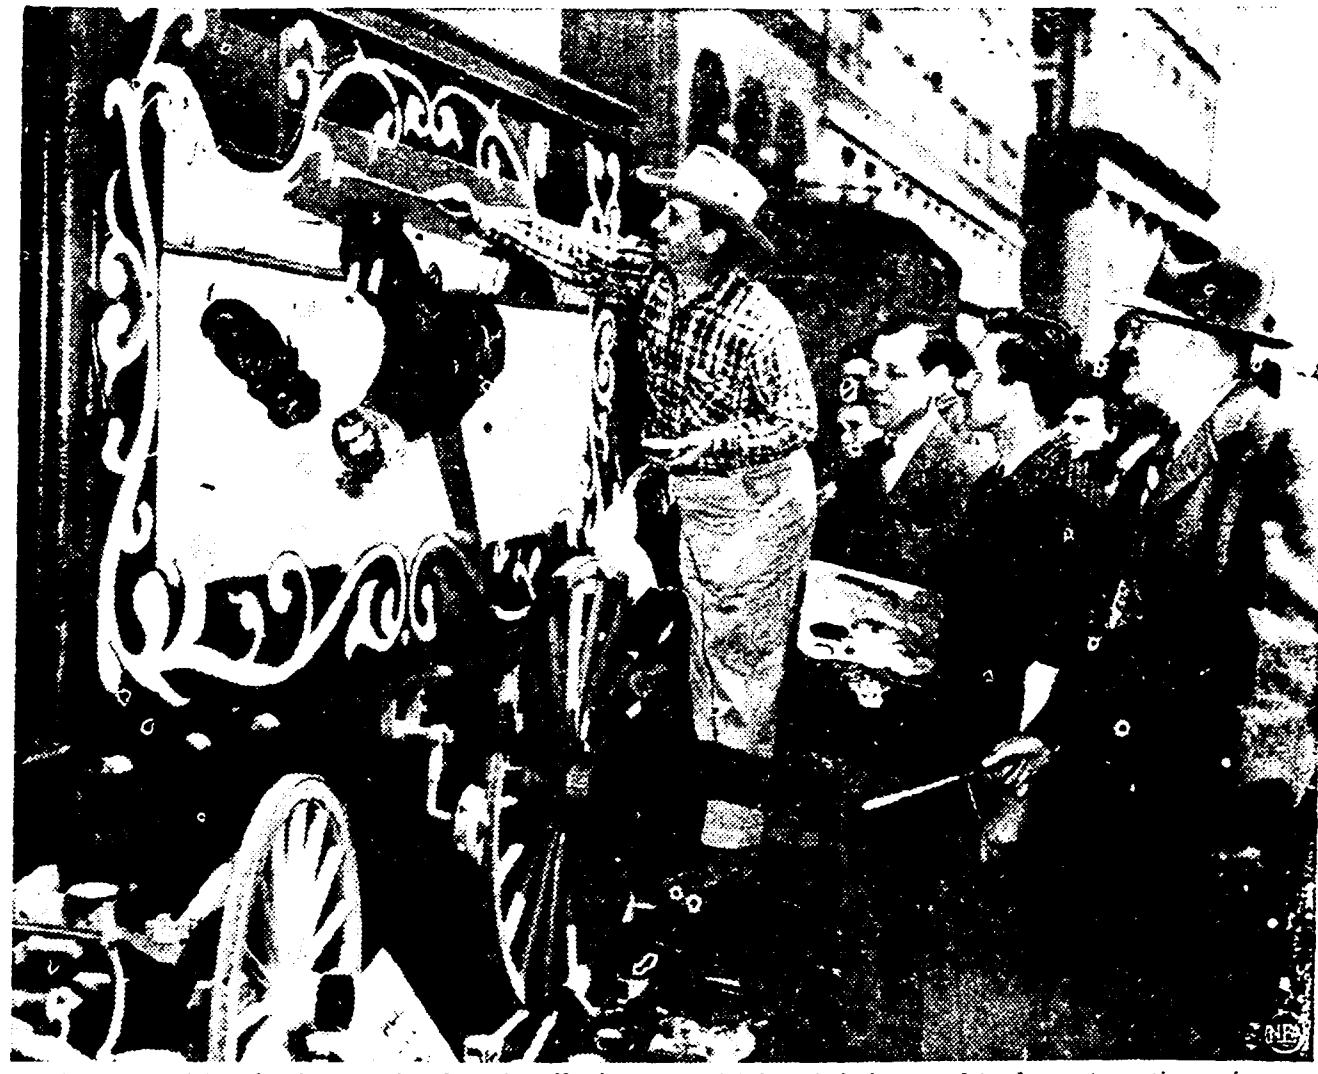

Cincinnati, Ohio.—(AP)—The perils of war are mild compared to the hazards of peace, C. Fred Scrimsher decided.

Shot down three times in Navy planes during the war and still bearing assorted shrapnel and machine gun wounds, Scrimsher, editor of an employee publication for Schenley Industries, Inc., here had the following bad luck in the last two months:

He catapulted his car over an embankment and suffered a dislocated shoulder and head injuries. Thieves stole his car radio and spare tire. He collided with another car, ruining a fender. A slip on an icy street gave him a sprained knee and the explosion of a flash bulb severely burned his hand. Finally, his wife contracted an infection that put her hand in splints.

Scrimsher said the South Pacific was never like that.

The United States Senate has sat as a court of impeachment 10 times since the formation of the American Constitution.

About a million bucks worth of nationally known art talent is being used to decorate antique circus wagons and calliopes in Bridgeport, Conn. The town is getting ready for its five-day Barnum Festival in June, when it will take on a big-top air to honor its most illustrious son, P. T. Barnum. Here, Harold Von Schmidt, national magazine cover artist, paints hippopotamuses on a wagon. Among other famed illustrators contributing their talents are Steve Dohanos and Alden McWilliams.

A PROGRAM FOR JACKSONVILLE

STREETS: A more vigorous and progressive administration of the street department. It is time—it is overdue—to restore pre-war services such as daily cleaning of the square and downtown streets, frequent cleaning of paved streets. Above all, streets long unoled should be oiled and bumpy, rutted streets should be properly prepared and oiled. We will get a capable road man to head this department and see that he devotes his time and energy to streets and alleys.

THE UTILITIES: We want to place the water, light and sewer departments outside the field of politics.

HEALTH: We recommend the appointment of a citizens committee to study the possibility of municipal garbage collection. A collection program would have to (1) provide collection for everyone (2) recognize a priority for jobs of those at present engaged in the collection of garbage (3) be economical.

There should be a rapid extension of water and sewer lines.

We propose that the present unenforced ordinance dealing with the inspection of milk be brought up to date so that it recognizes the existing situation and would be the basis of progressive changes so that the supply of milk would steadily be improved. Enforcement is essential at each stage.

FIRE PROTECTION: The question of fire protection for the areas north of the Wash track will be thoroughly studied. New equipment on order may make a separate fire station possible for the parts of the First and Second wards lying north of the railroad.

This is the program of JOHN P. WRIGHT for a better JACKSONVILLE. Be sure to vote on the 19th and vote:

Easter in the Cards

Old and New Greetings Offer Contrast

Eloquent comparison of antique Easter greeting cards with those of today is symbolized in center pictures. Allyn McLerie, New York actress, dressed in a turn-of-the-century costume, studies an antique card depicting a solemn Easter rabbit which is shown in close-up (top left). In sharp contrast is the saucy rabbit on the new card which is admired by model (right) who is dressed in this year's Easter bonnet and suit. Present-day drawing of spring chicken (bottom right) looks more humorous than its calico-dressed ancestor (center left). Spray of Easter lilies printed on modern cross-shaped card (top right) is simpler and more softly colored than flowers and gilt cross on family-album card (bottom left).

By Kay Sherwood,
NEA Staff Writer

There's proof in a comparison of today's Easter greeting cards with those of 40 or 50 years ago that American charm, wit, good taste and ingenious know-how have leaped forward as fast as Peter Rabbit's lightning-like strides.

Peter Rabbit is still as symbolic of the Happy Easter season as he was when grandma was a girl. Her descendants who preserved the penny post-card-size greeting card which grandma received from an admiring swain will also note, when flipping through her relics, that the graceful white lily was as sacred a symbol at the turn of the century.

A rare collection of the 1900's Easter greeting cards on exhibit in the Cleveland museum of the American Greeting Card Publishers provide visual proof of all of this. Any comparison of these, with this season's cards, however, offers eloquent proof that the artistic and mechanical treatment of the lily and the bunny is as different from those of today as a flying-egg crate relic is from a 1949 jet-propelled plane.

These antique cards show that somber and humorless symbols have given way to witty, saucy or tongue-in-cheek images. One card dating from the early 1900's depicts the Easter rabbit as the kind of unloved little pest which gets chased out of gardens. His melancholy expression belies the gaiety of the "Happy Easter" greeting which he paints like a stiff-fingered robot on a gaudy gilt-and-colored egg. Take his saucy descendant who pops out of today's Easter card. Sporting a top hat, a striped cravat and a boutonniere and flashing a bewhiskered grin, he bears none but a remote family resemblance to his solemn-faced forebear.

During the last 50 years chickens and ducklings have gone as sophisticated as the worldly bunny. A card of early vintage which depicts a hen garbed in a dress of calico print brandishing her umbrella at a runaway cotton tail provides contrast with the Easter message which is conveyed today. Modern baby chicks and ducklings are endearingly conceived by the artist in imaginative, witty and droll guises. Armed with big scissors, they hack at the stems of Easter flowers. They step out in sassy sailor suits or wink from behind frilly, ribbon-tied bonnets.

Modern religious motifs which are classic interpretations of the cross, the white-robed Christ, familiar biblical and church scenes are simpler and less obviously colored than earlier counterparts. On one family-album card of 1912, the bright gold cross which is heavily laden with greenish-white flowers is posed on a midnight blue background. In a modern version of this design, the cross which is cut out represents the intricacies of modern techniques. The shadings of delicate lavender with a spray of Easter lilies superimposed indicate the multi-color processes of today's color reproductions.

Messages on modern cards are specialized greetings to particular relatives or friends and are designed to make signing and mailing easy for the sender. Because many of the old-fashioned cards exhibited were printed on penny post cards, there is plenty of evidence that grandma was obliged to sit down with pen in hand to write the recipient of her card what passes today for a good-sized letter.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
MARKET REPORT

Chicago, April 9.—(P)—Hogs closed the week today nominally steady and, with the exception of a couple of days at the bottom of the February break, in the lowest price since OPA days. Butchers lost 30 cents and sows 25 cents on the week.

More hogs from the autumn pig crop were coming to market, acting to depress prices at a time when wholesale pork shows an easy undertone, traders said. Eastern order buyers were practically out of this market, obtaining new crop arrivals from eastern and southern points in the corn belt.

While hogs declined, cattle moved ahead. A top of $20.00 was paid for prime steers. The wholesale dressed beef market was active at advancing prices, supporting the upturn in live animal prices. Average cost of steers for the week was $24.39, an increase of 45 cents over the previous week.

More receipts turned up in the sheep section this week, including two loads of Canadian lambs. They were the first lambs to arrive here from Canada in 30 years. The very high prices of the previous week caused the increase in receipts. Wool lambs closed 50 to 75 cents lower while shorn lambs were strong to 25 cents higher.

Chaos Seen If Baseball's
Reserve Clause Found Void

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of stories on Danny Gardella and baseball's reserve clause.)

By TED SMITH

New York, April 9.—(P)—What is going to happen if the courts knock baseball's reserve clause into a cocked hat?

"There would be chaos at first," said a high baseball executive. "Salaries would be cut. The minor leagues would be hardest hit, perhaps mostly wiped out."

"There would be an adjustment to new conditions," said Frederic A. Johnson, attorney for Danny Gardella.

One way out would be for Congress to pass the bill introduced Tuesday legalizing the reserve clause. But before baseball could bank on this the Supreme Court would need to uphold it, and Johnson for one thinks such a law is unconstitutional.

If the courts get tough, and laws fail, there would be nothing to prevent the Pacific Coast League declaring its independence, luring big league stars to the west, and setting up a third major league.

Some men on the inside think this is the real threat if the reserve clause goes.

Forsee Wild Scramble

Others foresee a scramble by the rich major league clubs to sign up all the big name players.

The reserve clause binds a player to sign with the same club next year. It permits players to be sold, traded, or released at will.

Gardella, a former New York Giant outfielder banned for playing in the Mexican League in 1946, started the furor with a $300,000 suit under the anti-trust law.

Said Commissioner A. B. Chandler:

"Baseball does not want to engage in an illegal enterprise. . . . We have assumed we were operating legally."

"I did not become commissioner to preside at the liquidation of baseball."

Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, said: "Regardless of the outcome of the Gardella case, I'm certain that the contract as a legal document is in for overhauling."

5-Year Facts Suggested

Jim Gallagher, general manager of the Chicago Cubs, declared: "And if the reserve clause should be thrown out, will it kill baseball? I doubt it. Certainly there are enough brains and adaptability in professional baseball to figure out a method of operating legally."

The Hollywood-type contract has been suggested as a means of keeping baseball stable. Under this an actor signs up with a series of renewal options, each at a higher salary.

Another possibility would be contracts running for five years or more, with the clubs taking out heavy insurance to protect them in case a player was injured.

Congress will hold hearings April 14 on the bill to legalize the reserve clause. The real test will come when the Gardella case is called for trial, which is the normal course of events would not be before next year.

"But whatever happens baseball will live," said Johnson.

New York Stock
Market

New York, April 9.—(P)—Demand for selected oil and railway stocks put a touch of life in a generally steady stock market today.

Most price changes were in an upward direction with the majority in small fractions. Some of the oils and rails, though, moved up a point or so.

The forward trend was a continuation, on a very minor scale, of a rally that started late yesterday under leadership of the carrier section.

Richfield and Sinclair oil provided more than their share of total business. Turnover was at the rate of around 400,000 shares for the full two-hour session.

Demand for Sinclair oil apparently stemmed from news late yesterday that a subsidiary of the company had brought in a wildcat well in west Texas. Both Sinclair and Richfield added around a point.

Aside from interest in a few hand-picked issues, traders continued to maintain an aloof attitude toward the market—which has been typical of most markets for weeks on end.

Higher prices were paid most of the time for Standard Oil (N.J.), U. S. Steel, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar Tractor (up nearly 2 points at one time), and American Woolen.

Refusing to go along with International Harvester, Consolidated Natural Gas, American Smelting, Westinghouse Electric, Dow Chemical, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Paramount Pictures.

Corporate bonds showed few changes of consequence.

Masters' Tourney
Winner Will Set
New Record High

Augusta, Ga., April 9.—(P)—Unless birds and eagles begin to fall in the final half of the Masters, the winner of golf's winter circuit classic will set a record high over the Augusta national course.

Herman Keiser and Lloyd Mangrum, both oldtimers in professional golf, took 143 strokes each to reach today's round. Behind them by one stroke is Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N. C.

Further back the good score shortage is acute. Five players are tied at 145; one has a 146; four have 147; seven have 148; five 149; three 150 and six 151.

The leaders after the second round are a far different lot from those of the first round, with the exception of Mangrum, who has been winning in major golf since long before the war.

Keiser's great 68 yesterday, the lowest of the tournament, lifted him all the way from a six-way tie for 22nd place to the leaders' bracket. Herman won the 1946 Masters with a 72-hole total score of 282—a considerably faster pace than he set this year along with Mangrum.

Frank Stranahan, of Toledo, Ohio, who is to bobby sox golf fans what Frank Sinatra is to the bobby sox singers, yesterday could not get near par. Much less below it, and blew to a 77. The five-over-par round dumped him from second place to the 147 bracket. His first round score was 70.

Spartans, San Jose
State Seek NCAA
Boxing Crown

East Lansing, Mich., April 9.—(P)—Michigan State and San Jose State took off today for a scrap over the NCAA boxing tournament team title.

For the last four sessions of the tournament the title has been the exclusive property of Wisconsin.

Michigan State had a slight 13-12 edge over San Jose going into the finals. Both teams have three men still in the running.

Wisconsin, which carried off the title in 1942, 1943, 1947 and 1948, had only one fighter and four points.

Other schools with single entries shooting for individual championships were Maryland, Minnesota, Army, Syracuse and Miami of Florida.

Leafs Cop Opener
From Detroit In
Cup Finals, 3-2

Detroit, April 9.—(P)—Toronto still has its Stanley Cup hex on the Detroit Red Wings, but the Maple Leafs had to go 17 minutes of overtime in the first game of the 1949 cup finals last night to prove it.

Joe Klukay's game-breaking goal in the first overtime session gave the Leafs a hard-earned 3 to 2 victory before 13,445 fans. It sent Toronto streaking along in pursuit of its third straight Stanley Cup championship.

It was a hard licking for the Red Wings to take. After losing a 1-0 lead, they came back to overcome a 2-1 deficit and tie the score in the last six minutes on Bill Quackenbush's goal. This sent the struggle into overtime.

Toronto's string of "jinx" victories over Detroit in the playoffs was extended to nine straight games in three seasons.

Two years ago the Leafs met Detroit in the first round, lost the opening game and then waltzed to four straight wins to reach the finals. Last year they swept four in a row to plaster the Red Wings in the finals. Now Detroit again has its back to the wall as the current series moves toward Sunday night's second game, also scheduled here.

Foster Awarded
Split Decision
Over Taylor

Chicago, April 9.—(P)—After a strong finish in the last three rounds, Vince Foster of Omaha was awarded a split 10-round decision over rugged Chuck Taylor, ex-coal miner of Coalport, Pa., last night.

Foster, beset with a $100,000 lawsuit against him, and rusty after three months out of the ring, next will meet Charlie Fusari in New York May 13.

A win over Fusari, in a bout that was postponed from earlier this year, would put Foster directly in line for a crack at Ray Sugar Robinson's welterweight crown.

A Chicago stadium crowd of 11,594, which paid $51,477, watched the 22-year-old "Modern Nebraska Wildcat" close strong for his split decision over the surprising Taylor. The crowd loudly booed the decision.

Two days ago, Foster was sued for $100,000 by a Kansas City girl who charged him with forcible rape. Criminal rape charges brought by the girl were dismissed against Foster in St. Joseph, Mo., last March 21 for lack of evidence.

Lakers Lead Caps
3-0 For B.A.A.
Championship

Washington, April 9.—(P)—The Minneapolis Lakers can win the Basketball Association of America championship tonight by defeating the Washington Capitols one more time.

They made it three straight in the playoffs last night by routing the Capitols 94-74. The crown goes to the team winning four out of seven playoff games.

Big George Mikan starred as expected for the Lakers, firing in 35 points despite the fact he fouled out after three minutes in the final frame.

The former DePaul University ace racked up 13 field goals and nine free throws.

Northern Teachers
Edge Normal Nine

DeKalb, Ill., April 9.—(P)—Bob Boyce of Rockford, Ill., hurled a 9-inning no-hitter today as Northern Illinois edged Illinois Normal, 2-1 in an Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference baseball game.

Normal's run came in the second inning on two errors and an outfield fly. Boyce struck out eight and walked only one. Northern collected six hits and shoved across the winning marker in the ninth frame.

MORGAN TO CALIFORNIA—1849

A plantation overseer in Caddo Parish

By Cecil Tendick

There were clouds over Caddo parish when E. M. Rees opened his diary on Jan. 1, 1844. One, negro slavery, later enveloped the land in one of the bloodiest wars ever recorded. The other, soil waste, is still with us, although it appears to be yielding a little to the application of earnest and alarmed landowners.

The sky was filled with smoke from a thousand fires as hundreds of negro slaves denuded the fat virgin soil of its trees. The grandsons of plantation owners who had ruined the soil from the Eastern seaboard through the middle south had jumped across the Mississippi river. But they couldn't raise cotton until the land was cleared. So the trees were cut down, piled in long windrows and burned. The mounded wood smoldered for days.

For years the westward emigration had been led by poor slaves, families too poor to own a slave. Clattering looms all over the world called for cotton and more cotton, so rich Southern planters moved westward. They took with them their slaves, their heritages, their silver and their wine cellars. North-erners became alarmed, fearing that the slaveholders would gain political ascendancy in the western lands.

Skilled Overseer;
Earned Top Wages
Mr. Rees was an overseer for four years. Nowhere in his records does he praise the system. It appears that he took the job solely because it paid more than any other. He must have been a first rate overseer, for his wages were always at the top, from $35 to $50 a month.

He worked the negroes hard. Many references show that "Finished chopping, rolling and burning logs at 9 o'clock at night." "Scraped and plowed cotton eighth time, finished at night."

Occasionally the journal records such items as "had to whip Adam, the blacksmith." Adam ran away four days later, but came back within a week.

The crab grass was very bad in 1845. He drove the slaves from morning until late at night. Trouble began to mount.

"Caught two of the negroes that was runaway. Ase attempted to swim the river and got drowned." A few days later, "Went a negro hunting. Caught two. Drowned one in the river, one came home."

Later in the summer he was "laid up two weeks when boy George struck me with his horse 3 or 4 blows, which gave me very severe pain and confined me to my bed for two weeks with the exception of one day that I went out where the hands were at work."

Trains Hound To Trail Runaway Slaves
In those days Rees enjoyed hunting and dogs, a couple of sports he had little time for in Illinois. His "celebrated dog, Clark" brought him much satisfaction and a lot of trouble. Clark was evidently a fox hound. Early in 1845 he observed "Clark began to trail negroes very well." Clark was enough like other foxhounds that he was often lost for days at a time. Usually Rees went after the hound himself. Once he gave "the boy Celsian one dollar for returning Clark." Interesting enough, before the week was over, he gave another boy "3 or 50 cents for bringing home three negroes."

Clark got to be entirely too good a trailer for his own good. In September, 1846, "my Celebrated dog, Clark was poisoned and died." The hound's sire, Walker, "was poisoned by the slaves" in 1845.

Tuesday—The Road to Independence, Mo.

Fire-hunting "deer at night was one of the favorite sports of the young overseer. A slave, mounted on a mule and carrying a torch, would circle the edge of the clearings. The curious deer would come out of the woods to investigate. On one memorable night, May 26, 1845, Rees killed an unusually large deer, "a red buck. Weight 750 pounds."

Early in 1846 he went night-hunting. His remarks were terse, "Killed a cow accidentally."

The episode didn't discourage him too much. Later that year he bought a new gun and case for $13.70. He also owned a "Huntsman Silver Leaver Watch" which cost him the colossal sum of $50. Regardless of the cost, the watch gave a lot of trouble. Repairs in 30 months amounted to $22.50, including "6 bits for watch chisral."

Fish Fry, Camp Meeting
The Big Social Events
Social life was rather sparse. Rees made occasional trips to Greenwood. The big annual events included "the fish fry at the lake" and the camp meetings which opened on the second Sunday of each July. Once he went to a camp meeting on the Texas line where he found "a very fine congregation of well behaved people." In July, 1845, after attending camp meeting, he "bought the first Bible and song book that I ever owned."

Evidently Rees voted for more losers than winners throughout his lifetime. He cast his first vote, in 1844, for Henry Clay, the Kentuckian who asserted "I'd rather be right than president." While he lived in Morgan county, Rees was a nominal Democrat, although he didn't get too excited about any politician.

Just before his 27th birthday he was initiated into Free Masonry in a ceremony held in Greenwood. Throughout his life-time he was a staunch advocate of Masonic principles. Whenever he met two or three Masons in the sparsely settled west, the lodge brothers would review the work.

Leaves The South;
Comes To Morgan
Rees made money in Caddo county. He saved most of his salary, lent it out at the prevailing interest of 10 per cent and used his talents as a horse trader to add to his savings. But his health began to fail. In August, 1846, he was "sick for 15 days with conjestive fever." He "felt poorly" throughout the winter, despite stiff dosages of Peruna and other "hot" medicines. In May, 1847, he headed for Illinois, traveling by steamboat from New Orleans to Meredosia. The boat fare from St. Louis to Meredosia was $2.55; the railroad fare from Meredosia to Jacksonville, $1.40.

The next day he left his troublesome Silver Leaver Watch at King's Jewelry store on the south side of the square and went to Franklin. A few days later he bought 385 acres of land which he was to build into "Evergreen Farm" and the splendid grove that bears his name.

Prairie land was cheap, because nobody wanted it. Settlers at the edge of the woods warned him that "he'd freeze out in the winter, burn out in the summer and starve all year." But he had the foresight to see the wealth of prairie land and purchased 325 acres at $3 an acre. Of course, he needed wood, so he bought one 20 acre tract for $140 and another 40 acre piece of timber for $240.

Tuesday—The Road to Independence, Mo.

J. Harry Dowland and William Townsley, candidates for reelection to the Jacksonville Board of Education, were returned to the board for three year terms by the voters Saturday.

There was a total of 1,657 votes cast in the election. The fourth ward led with 775, followed by the second ward with 650. The third ward cast 197 votes and the only 35 votes were tallied in the first ward.

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts

THE STORY: Mr. and Mrs. Roberts take in problems along with lodgers when they do their part to relieve the wartime housing shortage in Great Falls, Mont. Chief problem is Roger, who invites unexpected guests to dinner and smokes up the Roberts' car. But there are other guests, and other difficulties.

XVIII

I RETURNED home one late afternoon to find an eager, husky young Air Transport Command pilot waiting to see me. He was just back in this country from flying Lend-Lease over the Hump and he had been advised at the Field that Sonny was to be transferred. (It often happened that new applicants for our rooms would come to see us before the present incumbents had heard they were to be moved.) He wanted the Vickers' room for the bride he was about to marry.

Jean had wanted to get married before Rollo went overseas, but her parents insisted upon their waiting until she was 21. She had that birthday the same day he flew his 45th mission—his age plus hers. "Get it?" he said. It seemed to him like an omen of good luck, and now as soon as he cleared at the Field, he'd get leave and they'd be married.

I looked at his war-weary uniform, wings over the pocket, two rows of campaign ribbons heavily dotted with stars and oak leaf clusters, the brilliant red, white, and blue shield on his sleeve; at his thatch of blond hair, the premature lines around his eyes; the tense, nervous way he used his lips; and I thought there wasn't much sacrifice a civilian could make that such a boy hadn't earned and didn't deserve. I briefed him on what I should expect of him and his wife. (Why I wasted breath on such futility I don't know for I never anticipated what a new guest would do and what did happen was never in the pattern of what had happened.)

Roger came home as Rollo and I were finishing out arrangements. He hung around until "the Little Birdman," as he referred to Rollo, left, and then he advised me I was making a great mistake, that the fellow wasn't of "our class." I didn't tell Roger that Rollo was about to be married and would not undermine him and his hold on us; I listened instead to the click of his nose as it went out of joint, and watched the brown of his eyes turn to green. "One thing I hope for your sake," he concluded, "is that you'll keep him in his place. After all, he's only a fellow. A fellow with his cheek wouldn't hurt so much," he said, rubbing his throat, "if I could cry."

Roger stuck his head in the door to ask if he could—no, to tell me he would—stay home for dinner. Since he had been commissioned, he ate a good many meals at the Officers' Club.

"Not tonight, Roger," I said. "Rollo's in trouble. I want him to stay."

"What's up?"

"His girl is marrying someone else."

"She loves me," Rollo said, hanging onto that comfort. "Yeah, I know," Roger laughed. "Like a sister."

Rollo looked as though he'd had his face slapped. He bolted upstairs to his room and I ran after him. "Rollo! Rollo!" I called. "Rollo, don't give up yet. Maybe she isn't married after all. Maybe her parents wouldn't let her. If she'll just wait a little while, she'll see how foolish it is to give up a man she knows for one who has had only time to fascinate her. He's too old for her. Call her. Call her long distance, now. Talk to her. Make her promise to wait a while. If she'll wait, you fly home tonight."

Rollo put in his call, but it was Jean's mother who talked to him. Tearfully she told him that Jean had eloped the day before.

42—showed clearly all the way through the letter).

"Now do be a good boy, dear," she wrote, "and forgive me. It's going to seem awfully strange keeping house with another man and using all of the things we collected for our home, but I know you'd want me to be sensible and not throw them away just because of a little change in plans. I'll always love you, dear," she wrote. "It isn't that I love you less; only that I love Herbert more." She ended with: "How fortunate we are to have found out before it was too late."

ROLLO read the letter three times before he crushed it in his trembling hands. He walked back and forth across the kitchen floor a few turns. Then he dropped limply onto a chair. "I think it wouldn't hurt so much," he said, rubbing his throat, "if I could cry."

Roger stuck his head in the door to ask if he could—no, to tell me he would—stay home for dinner. Since he had been commissioned, he ate a good many meals at the Officers' Club.
